

MORE INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS BY HUBBELL COUNSEL

Object to County Commission's Order of Ejection.

DAY OF RAPID DEVELOPMENTS AT THE COUNTY COURT HOUSE

Things moved with some rapidity in the county court house today as a result of the day's proceedings, former County Treasurer Frank A. Hubbell and his counsel, J. E. Sheridan, who are contesting the order of the county commission to eject them from the county court house, filed a petition for an injunction to prevent the county from removing them.

The proceedings began yesterday morning in the county court house when the commission was called to order by Chairman Grunfeld at 10 o'clock and its first work was the voting of two orders, one addressed to Frank A. Hubbell, and the other to his counsel, J. E. Sheridan, ordering them to vacate the rooms held by them as treasurer and school superintendent in the county court house. The two orders, identical in wording and effect are as follows:

Whereas, Frank A. Hubbell, is unlawfully holding possession of certain rooms in the county court house, heretofore used as offices by the county, and ex-officio collector of the county, and has refused to deliver them to Justo R. Armijo, treasurer and ex-officio collector of the county, notwithstanding the order of the board heretofore made;

Now, therefore, it is ordered by the board that the sheriff of the county immediately expel and remove the said Frank A. Hubbell and his employees and agents from the said rooms and to deliver them to Justo R. Armijo, treasurer and ex-officio collector of the county, and thereafter to protect said Armijo in such possession if it should be necessary.

Order Against Vigil. Whereas, Salvo Vigil is unlawfully holding possession of the room in the county court house heretofore used as an office by the superintendent of schools of the county, and has refused to deliver the same to Justo R. Armijo, treasurer and ex-officio collector of the county, notwithstanding the order of the board heretofore made; now, therefore, it is ordered by the board that the sheriff of the county immediately expel and remove the said Salvo Vigil and his employees and agents from the said room and to deliver the same to Justo R. Armijo, treasurer and ex-officio collector of the county, and thereafter to protect said Armijo in such possession as it should be necessary.

Resistance Was Not Violent. These orders were immediately placed in the hands of Sheriff Armijo for execution and accompanied by his deputies and the small crowd which had gathered to hear the commissioners' proceedings, he proceeded to the basement. There he found Hubbell in the treasurer's office, with his deputy, J. E. Sheridan, and the young lady who keeps the books. The greetings between the defendants and invaders were pleasant but quite business like.

"You will have to get out," said Armijo to Sheridan, who was in the front office.

"I will have to ask you to put me out," politely responded Mr. Sheridan with a bow that would have done justice to that great dancer.

The sheriff's deputy took Mr. Sheridan carefully by the arm and conducted him with some ceremony to the door, the deputy making no resistance, other than the formal refusal to allow the defendants to leave the room. The treasurer, who was in the room, was treated to the same ceremony. Alward Mr. Sheridan was allowed to return to get his hat.

In the meantime the young lady clerk had been quite busy. She stood away from the door, locked the door and placed the keys in some mysterious place. In her becoming shirt waist, departed through a rear door. The opportunity to gallantly escort her out was not afforded the sheriff and his assistants, so far as is known the young lady still has the keys. It is quite certain that the new treasurer hasn't them. Up to yesterday afternoon he had not succeeded in raising entrance to the vault, although it is rumored that most of the county books and chattels have been removed therefrom and that little of value remains in the vault.

However, the new treasurer now has possession of his office, likewise the new superintendent of schools.

From the treasurer's office the sheriff after fulfilling his mission, proceeded to the county court house, where he found Professor Vigil comfortably seated in his office chair. The same polite invitation was extended to him to get out. He declined, but was presently escorted out, making no severe resistance. As he went out, he asked Mr. Stroup, who went in, not to crack the safe, as he would hand over the keys. Later in the day, however, he heard a change of heart. He told the new occupant of the comfortable office, that he had consulted his attorneys and had decided he couldn't do it. Thereupon Mr. Stroup went for a locksmith, who he succeeded in opening the outside door of the safe, could not get through the inner doors.

Quite recently a tiny hole, such as a safe cracker might make, was made in the door, but the hole was so small, causing one of the tumblers to stick. It is very likely that the door will have to be smashed before it will disclose the contents of the safe. It is also rumored that when Mr. Stroup got into his safe he will find nothing but dust and cobwebs.

Political Conspiracy Charged. In the meantime the attorneys for the ousted occupants of the basement offices had not been idle. Typewriters had been at work and by the time the court was ready to convene after the noon recess, six pages of a petition for an injunction had been prepared. The petition was at once presented to the court. The document sets forth that the sheriff has unlawfully and by force, and upon orders of the county commission, taken possession of the offices of the treasurer and school superintendent and asks that an injunction be issued to restrain the sheriff, the treasurer, school superintendent, county commission, and all others from taking any further steps in the same direction. The petition alleges among other things that a conspiracy exists between the county commission, the sheriff, and the two out-claims concerned to deprive the plaintiffs of their rights. Judge Abbott set the petition for hearing at 9:30 o'clock this morning at the opening of court.

In the meantime the officials have proceeded to install themselves in their new quarters as comfortably as possible. Treasurer Armijo was asked yesterday as to the condition of the county treasury. He declared with emphasis that he hadn't consulted his attorney.

It is expected that an entrance will have been effected into the vault in the treasurer's office by this morning, and the books and other property has been removed, as alleged. In case it has, an action will probably be begun at once to force the return of the county property to the court house where it belongs and to the custody of the county officials.

The result of this morning's hearing on the petition for the injunction will be awaited with interest. The most serious phase of the county muddle up to the present time, is the continued withholding of county funds by Frank A. Hubbell. It is urged that whatever the outcome of the contest for the treasurer's office, there is nothing to justify the withholding of the county funds which are needed for legitimate county purposes, and it is probable that unless these funds are turned over to the county treasury in the near future some decided action will be taken against the former treasurer.

COLORADO MOVING FOR GOOD ROADS

LIKELY TO OUTDISTANCE NEW MEXICO IN MATTER OF STATE HIGHWAY.

In spite of the law passed by the last legislature of New Mexico, by which territorial aid was extended to the proposed highway from the Colorado line to Mexico, and despite the impetus given the movement by the recent convention in Las Vegas, Colorado is likely to have her trans-state highway before New Mexico's scenic highway, even is completed.

The Denver Post says: Good roads for every part of the state; the organization of associations in each county to improve the roads, and the construction of two great, hard highways, one extending from the Colorado line to Wyoming and the other from Pueblo to Grand Junction, are among the things the Colorado Good Roads association has set out to accomplish.

The executive committee of the state organization, consisting of J. A. Hayes of Colorado Springs, president; Dr. E. L. Bartlett of Denver, and J. C. Ogden of Redstone vice president; John F. Campbell, of Denver, treasurer; Henry Russell Wray, of Colorado Springs, secretary, and Arthur Williams, of Denver, assistant secretary, has planned a tour of inspection to see how the roads are in the various sections of the state, asking their co-operation. Five county associations have already been formed and it is proposed to have one in every county to undertake good road construction.

It is planned to have all the county associations combine in the endeavor to have the legislature pass a law to permit the state to take over the roads and to permit the state to take over the roads and to permit the state to take over the roads.

SOLDIERS MAY SOLVE GRINDELL MURDER

A dispatch from Tucson says: E. F. Grindell left this afternoon for Hermosillo to join a detachment of Mexican soldiers which Governor Ysabel has promised to send into the Seri country in a final effort to learn the fate of the party headed by Tom Grindell, his brother, and, if possible, to recover their bones, which are believed to be bleaching somewhere on the desert, where they were last seen alive.

The Papago guide who accompanied them is suspected of treachery and the Mexican military authorities intend to put him on the rack on Grindell's arrival. If they fail to wring a confession from him, he will be forced to accompany them to the spot where he left Grindell with his companions.

There are few Seri Indians and practically no Yaquis in that part of the country, and Governor Ysabel is now convinced that the funds are betrayed to the hands of the party in the hands of the Mexican renegades and that they perished from thirst in the desert. Inasmuch as they have not been heard from for more than three months, no hope of finding them alive is entertained.

General von Trotha's Account Shows No Conspiracy With Natives.

Berlin, Oct. 11.—The government has received an answer from General von Trotha, commanding the German forces in Southwest Africa, to a request for information concerning the reported Boer plot to overthrow German rule in Southwest Africa. General von Trotha represents the newspaper reports of the incident as much exaggerated. He says a young Boer informed the Windhoek police that a number of teamsters from Cape Colony, who were in the German service, had planned to attack a German wagon train accompanied by a herd of cattle, which they meant to drive across the British frontier. The police arrested four of the ringleaders of the plot and detained them pending an investigation. There was no evidence, General von Trotha says, that they were conspiring with the natives.

The dispatch makes no mention of Andrew de Wet, a nephew of the Boer general, who previously was reported to have planned the overthrow of German rule in Southwest Africa. The date of General von Trotha's dispatch is not made public.
